Bears, wolves, curnels, lions, leopards, &c., there are, but they are neither very fine specimens of their kind, nor are there any particularly rare species to be seen here. The elephants, big and little, have departed on a country tour. The small Kerry cattle and the buffalces, are grazing on the lawn in front, and the causel is promenading on the Mall, to the delight of hundreds of small children. Passing on we come to the lake and terrace. The beats are all out, and a few hardy adventurers are making trips in them, to the astonishment of the swans and ducks, who seem to consider the lake as their own peculiar property. A little further on is the deer park, with its moose, elk, failov and red deer. Last season several of them became so tame that they were allowed the liberty of the Park, and did not, so far as we know, abuse it. Something has been said in regard to the want of a sufficient number of shade trees in the Park. Those who have had special charge of the matter contend that a sufficient number of trees has been plunted; that to plant trees closely along every path would give the Park that formul and precise appearance which of all things should be avoided.

This would be the sentiment expressed, they say, if the idea of planting shade trees along each path was carried out. That there is not quite enough shade at present they partially admit, but the trees are growing, and they cannot be made to grow faster than they do. To attempt the transplanting of full grown trees, as some have suggested, would be attended with enormous expense, and is an experiment seldom attended with success. Within a few years there will be no complaints heard of want of shade, say the Commissioners.

Below will be found a description of most of the improvements contemplated by the Commissioners, or rather, "The Department of Public Farks," as the designation reads:

On the right are the East River, Hell Gate, the Sound and Portchester; in front the Reservoirs, Harlem, Mount Morris square, covered with fine trees, the High Bridge and Harlem River; on the left is Eim Park, and behind the great City, with its palaces, churches, equares and innumerable lines of streets. Turn where we will the scene is, in Summer at least, one of beauty. The Park itself lies apread out like a map, a living one, at the observer's feet. Green lawns, smooth as a velvet carpet, bright water, umbrageous trees and picturesque bridges, form a picture charming as any that the cyc may ever look upon.

THE GRAND FOUNTAIN.

The grand fountain on the terrace, near the lake, will not be completed until next year. The design made by Miss Stebbins comprises a colossal winged female figure, standing on a pedestal, the latter surrounded by infantile male figures. It is now being cast in bronze by Muller, of Munich. The stone work of the fountain is now being put in, and will soon be completed. When finished, the ion, of the Park will be second to a tion of the Park will be second to none in the world in beauty and general attractiveness, for not only is the ornomentation rich, but it has been chosen with great tasts and with an eye to the general effect. A drinking fountain for horser is being constructed in the centre of the drive, above the great lake. It will add to the appearance of this portion of the Park, and prove a great accommodation to visitors.

The Park already possesses several fine groups and statues, as the "Indian Huntir," the "Tigress and her Whelps," the E-gie and her Young," besides the busts of Schiller and Humbeldt. These are now of Shiller and Humboldt. These are now to be added to. The statue of Shakes-peare will be placed near the north end of the Mull, and that of a "Soldier of the Seventh Regiment" at the extreme south and of the Park pear or end of the Park, near one of the principal entrances. The Shakespeare statue is not yet prepared; the other is quite ready, but its pedestal is not. It is not likely that either will be in position during the

FURTHER INCIDENTS AND SCENES. The Richmond Dispatch has the folking further accounts of scenes and is og further account ents at the Capitol:

SCENE ABOUT THE CAPITOL BUILDING.

The scene about the Capitol building ust after the sad occurrences was one of cerror. The first notice that those who were in the building had of the impending sion was rettling. Then there came a fearful crash, accompanied by a cry of human agony and terror which smote the hearts of all who heard it. In a moment the frightful situation was realized: The few who had been so fortunate as to be able to get into the windows, shouted about for help for those who had fallen, and called for ladders. In a ishort time the bells were tolling, and; the hook and ladder track being brought upon the spot, the ladders were put up to the windows, and the work of humanity began. The blinding dust within provented are were IN THE HOUSE OF DELECATES. ~

Hall were thrown open, and within soon collected the busy workers, mid their own shouts and the ago soon concerted the busy workers, who mid their own shouts and the agonizing groans of those they were seeking to rescue, were removing the timbers. As the wounded and dead were reached, they were brought out and placed in the Senate Chamber, or else under the trees in the Square, where they were attended by our city physicians and others who were on hand with such appliances as could be obtained. As the men were brought out they were so covered with dust that they could scarcely be recognized, and for a while the auxious inquiries of the bystanders, "Who is he?" could not be answered. One, by one they were borner, out—the dead and dying. Here was one mangled and silently enduring, another crying aloud with pain, while the still form of a third told too well that its spirit had fled to another world. In one moment the gray hairs of ago could be descried upon the head of some dead one, while in the next the tall, manly form of one who had been cut off in the bloom of life was being borne past. THE THEORY OF THE ACCIDENT. THE THEORY OF THE ACCIDENT.

From, conversations with several who were in the court room at the time of the fall we learn the following as the true theory of the accident: The large girder which was under the partition between the clerk's office and the court, room snapped in twain, and immediately afterwards the floor commenced to cave. The support of the crowded gallery having given away, the gallery parted from the wall and fell over into the centre of the court room, crushing through the floor and precipitating the mass of human beings and rubbish into the hall below. We examined the girder and found that it had been broken off just in the centre. It was hewn timber, and just where it broke wise a cut, as if the workman in howing had made a miss-lick and driven his adze into

HORRIBLE DEATH.

The most terrible feature about this whole affair is the heart-lending manner of death in the majority of instances. Many of the dead, when brought out, wasnifound to be without serious, bodily injury, but had evidently, died from suffocation. The mere contemplation of such a thing is sickening. Hard, indeed, was the fatte of those who had seenged death from the failure timber in the and to die from the me

From the N. Y. Times.

Brighter times on lawn and border, the waving of the delicate green tussels of the willow, the chirrup of birds, the odor of newly-turned soil, and here and there the appearance of some bright-colored crocus tell us that the earth has awakened from its long Winter sleep, and is about, as of old, to keep its promise secred. Entering the Park, let us suppose at Fifth avenue and passing the pretty lake and hill on the left, the old arsenal, now devoted to the keeping of wild and domestic animals, the keeping of wild and domestic antimals, comes in view. It is not an imposing structure by any means, but then the Commissioners had to take it as tay found it. The collection within is not a

Telegrams of sympathy, offering help for the afficted, are coming in from all parts of the country. A citizen of New York has given authority to a gentleman here to draw $1,000 for the relief of the sufferers.

A telegram from Alexandria announces the death from sorrow, of Mrs. Brewer, wife of one of the victims.

An experienced architect has reviewed the plan of the Capitol building, and says that the girder which gave way was composed of two pieces of timber, bolted together, making when combined, an erea of 13 by 20 inches, r, making when combineres of 13-by 20 inches formerly supported by column to the support of the At was formerly supported by columns, which were subsequently removed to improve the appearance of the hall of the House of Delegates. In the center of the girder was a mortise, 9½ by 20 inches. The fatal error was in making interior changes without examining the girders with reference to their capacity to endure the new stress placed upon them.
